In-vitro study of the biofilm formation and biofouling potential of Streptococcus mutans in the presence of silver nanoparticles. Silver nanoparticles were synthesized and characterized for their antimicrobial activity against S. mutans. The formation of biofilm and biofilm on the surface of silver nanoparticles was studied. The nanoparticles were observed with the help of transmission electron microscope (TEM). The biofilm formation was visualized with the help of fluorescent microscope with green (live) and red (dead) fluorescence. TEM images were observed for the biofilm
