2 Minute Timer [Win/Mac] [Updated] 2022

2 Minute Timer is a straightforward piece of kit that facilitates a simple means of counting down time from 2 minutes. It features a robotic male voice and speaks the commands as soon as you trigger them, as well as when time's up. Detailed description: Software requirements and easy setup Installing this application doesn't take long and requires minimal attention. However, you know download and install.NET Framework unless you already have it, since the tool was developed with the aid of this software framework. Modern Windows iterations have it built into the system. Clear-cut interface for counting down time from 2 minutes When it comes to the interface, 2 Minute Timer opts for a simple window that takes a straightforward approach. The text with 120 seconds is displayed in large, black numbers, and it's accompanied by three buttons for starting, stopping and resetting the timer. As previously mentioned, the software utility has an integrated robotic voice that can be heard every time you click any of the buttons. The stop button is actually for pausing the timer since it can be resumed by clicking on start again. Robotic male voice speaks the commands When time's up, the app plays three beeping sounds to draw your attention, which especially comes in handy when you're working with other programs. No message dialog pops up on the screen, and there are no other types of visual cues to let you know that time's up. Sadly, this is where the program's functionality ends. Poor set of features for a countdown timer As expected from such a compact software utility, it had minimum impact on the computer's performance, so it didn't hog RAM and CPU. On the other hand, it had a slow response time to commands, especially when attempting to click on buttons quickly. Nonetheless, you can test 2 Minute Timer for yourself to discover any compatibility issues with your operating system.
