What's new in Swiss Knife:

Week Swiss Knife Week (formerly known as Swiss Knife Weekend and Swiss Knife Retreat) is an annual weekend in autumn that takes place in Morristown, New Jersey, and is sponsored by its Knife Sharpeners Association and individual knife sharpeners. Description Other than its long history, little is documented about Swiss Knife Week. Judging from the dates in the program, the event is held annually in October. Each year hundreds of attendees come to the fairgrounds near Morristown, New Jersey, to find new equipment, sharpeners, and to meet other knife enthusiasts. The old fairgrounds, where attendees now park their cars, burned down in 1971, but the new fairgrounds are located at the present-day IGA food and shopping center. The new location can expand from approximately to. Swiss Knife Week is mainly for those in the business of working with knives or sharpening knives (hardware) and the equipment related to that business. The week is made up of two days, Saturday and Sunday. On Saturday attendees can register for the hands-on workshop, held in the morning, which teaches them how to sharpen knives, or anything else related to the knife sharpening industry. Those attending the hands-on workshop can sharpen their knives and related equipment prior to the morning workshop. Also, on Saturday and Sunday attendees can attend as many workshops on sharpening as they like, as well as different seminars, and of course social events during the weekend. A weekend trip to the fairgrounds usually costs less than $100. On a typical weekend attendance could be between 300 and 500 people. Events Saturday The owner of the new fairgrounds is officially the Republic Broadcasting Network. The weekend is promoted in the local AM radio station. On Saturday there will be several special events that take place from morning until after lunch. In the morning attendees can sharpen and wood-turn their own belt-knife scabbards and belt-knife sheaths. Other stations that are located nearby will be running special demonstrations in the afternoon and evening. Swiss Knife Week is the one-stop shop where knife sharpening experts can meet with potential customers. The lunch spot is German-American (ethnic) foods located across from the Large Fair Grounds. They provide German and other authentic cuisines. The Sports are located on the fairgrounds, as well as the normal fair
