It is a small airport serving the Syktyvkar and its immediate surroundings. It is the primary airport of the region, the largest passenger airport of the Komi Republic, the smallest passenger airport in the Russian Federation, and one of the fastest growing. History Syktyvkar Airport was built in 1936 as part of a reorganization of the Soviet air forces. In World War II it was used as a base for the evacuation of Moscow. After the war the airport was closed and dismantled. The runway was rebuilt as a renovated air base of the 6th Military District. In 1958 Soviet aircraft put the airport back into service. In 1981 the airport's runway was lengthened and the terminal built. In 1989 it was reopened as a civilian airport. It is the only airport of Syktyvkar and the Komi Republic. In 2016 construction of the new terminal began. The airport has, 4T asphalt and 60T concrete. The terminal has 4,432 square meters of floor area, with 510 hotel beds and of space for passenger boarding. Facilities There are 7 check-in counters with a capacity for 250 travelers and 27 customs checkpoints. There are no parking spaces and passengers park in the city. There is a modern restaurant and a small bar. The new Terminal is scheduled to be open on January 1, 2019. On its northeastern edge, in the direction of the Syktyvkar Lake, there is a small marina which can accommodate 5 vessels, mostly catamarans and sailboats. On the southern edge of the airport, there are four small restaurants offering fast foods, bars, cafes and shops, a children's playground and a driving range. According to ICAO, the airport has a single asphalt runway. The official IATA code is SYK. The airport is located 10 km from downtown Syktyvkar and 15 km from Syktyvkar (Ozhogskoye) Airport. Airl
