For the first time in the history of the Leduc No. 3 production oil and gas field, the well has been producing from the Upper Cretaceous Sand Hills Shale and has completed the first well to do so. The well was drilled to a total depth of 12,345 feet and uses a completion system consisting of an 18-inch sand control and a 30-inch string of 2.75-inch diameter slotted pipe and is producing nearly 15 barrels of oil per day. Tim Leffingwell, Vice President for Upstream Services, ENMAX, said the successful completion is a great result for the industry as a whole, as Alberta is well on its way to becoming an oil and gas producing province. "We are excited that this well has been successful and that the first well to do so has now been completed. This demonstrates the value of the increasingly deep wells that are being drilled in the Utica-like shale region of western Canada and is part of our overall plan for the future of the industry," said Leffingwell. Three wells are currently flowing at Leduc No. 3: well 1221C1 flows 3,400 barrels per day from the Utica-like shale and wells 1221 c6a93da74d
