How To Use Mac Mouse Cursor On Windows 10 ((FREE))

The first step is to plug in your mouse. Windows 10 may detect it automatically, but if it doesn't, that's fine. Click on the Start menu, type in 'run', and type in "%systemroot%\system32\drivers\etc\hosts". Make sure that the mouse cursor is visible in the computer window. Then type the below command and press Enter. ::ffff:192.168.1.9

How to Use Mac Mouse Cursor on Windows 10 Now, you can go to the mouse properties, go to the advanced tab, and you can select the "Log Direct" checkbox. You should get a notification that the mouse is no longer connected, so you can continue the steps to go to the next step. If the cursor has changed, then it will need to be changed back to the Mac type. In order to make it change, open the mouse properties, click on the advanced tab, and make sure that the 'Log Direct' checkbox is NOT selected. After that, you should click on the OK button. There is a possibility that you might be using an old mouse and that the windows cursors are set incorrectly, and you can change that. Change the mouse config in windows power user on the mouse settings. The scroll section is set to off, and you can change that to on to set how the mouse works. If you do not have the windows power user in windows then you can also use the msconfig tool, and in the startup tab set mouse pointers to disabled (use the browse button to find it and make it disabled). Thanks for all the tips guys, it was very helpful. Sure its a rough trick, but it worked on my computer (after disabling the infrared sensor) and when i scrolled the window moved. @Raistein Blue Friday, Aug 26 2018 12:41 AM
