Download Citation | Leader of the Pack Neuropsychological Assessment, 5th Edition, Muriel Lezak, Diane B. Howieson, Erin D. Bigler, & Daniel Tranel. 2012. "Psychologists use behavioral assessment tools to help improve treatment planning, facilitate the discovery of neuropathic injuries, and analyze internal processes of disabling disorders. Both theory and practice remain important to understanding the impact of anxiety on disorders and to optimize treatments. Neuropsychological assessment is critical for the understanding of alternative treatment options, when applied to anxiety disorders, and therapists should understand the role of assessment.
